PHILADELPHIA. November 12 .- The first of the two steamships built in this Company was launched this afternoon from the Cramps' ship-yard, in the pres ence of President Cleveland, members of the Cabinet, and a large throng of peothe vessel and named it the St. Louis, after the metropolis of Missouri.

At 12:10 o'clock the special train, having the President, Mrs. Cleveland, and their party aboard, steamed slowly up to the ship-yard gate. Clement A. Griscom, president of the International Navigation Company, and Charles H. Cramp, president of the Cramp Shipbuilding Company, had boarded the presidential special before it arrived at the yard, and they were the first to alight. Henry W. Cramp, secretary of the company, and a number of others were in walting, and they stepped forward and raised their hats as Mrs. Cleveland, followed by Mr. Griscom and Mr. Cramp, stepped from the car. Mrs. Cleveland followed the President and took Mr. Griscom's arm, and Mr. Cleveland walked beside Mr. C. H. Cramp. The other members of the presidential party speedily alighted from the cars, and for a few minutes salutations and introductions took place.

Mr. H. W. Cramp presented Mrs. Cleveland and the other ladies of the party of others were in waiting, and they step-

After the naming party had entered the yard the gates were thrown open, and the walting crowd thronged in. There was a off last in only a fair start, with Tuscan showing a length in front of Midstar, second. This order was maintained to the head of the chute, where Oily Gammon had crawled to third position. A rattling drive to the wire put Midstar under it a length in front of Tuscan, who was a neck in front of Oily Gammon, with the rest in a string.

Wernberg, the 1402 f mostly workmen of the yard, found a good position to view the launch from the deck of the unfinished St. Paul, the sister ship of the St. Louis, which is on the stocks adjoining where the St. Louis stood. Fully 25,000 people were in the yard as the moment for the launch approached.

All the morning workmen had been busy about the steamship preparing her for her first die jute her native element.

all the morning working had been busy about the steamship preparing her for her first dip into her native element. The national flag floated from the bow, and a string of flags of many nations were strung over the deck from stem to stern. A great hammering came up from beneath the steamship's keel. Mr. H. W. Cramp was finally notified that all was in readiness, and he handed Mrs. Cleveland the gayly-decorated bottle of champagne that she was to break on the ship's bow. As he did so he advised her as to the best way in which to break the bottle. Mrs. Cleveland took the bottle, nodded, and smiled in reply to Mr. Cramp's advice, and stood waiting for the ship to begin to move. The sharp, hissing sound made by a saw cutting its way through wood came clearly above the noise made by the crowd.

AMERICAN COMMERCE.

"While we may well be proud because we have launched the largest and most powerful steamship ever built in the western hemisphere, and, with two exceptions, the largest and most powerful in the world, and while we may find reason for additional pride in the fact that, notwithstanding general economic conditions not encouraging to such achievements, this great vessel has been built on American plans, by American mechanics, and of American materials, we must not forget that our greatest cause of congratulation is found in the hope and promise these incidents furnish of the revival and development of American commerce, and the renewed appearance and promise these incidents furnish of the revival and development of American commerce, and the renewed appearance of the American flag in foreign ports.

"I hope I shall not be accused of making a suggestion calculated to mar the gratification which this occasion inspires if I remind you that the ship we have just launched was built in fulfilment of conditions imposed in consideration of the relaxation of our registration laws, and that the constructive plant and machinery to build this ship, on American plans, by American mechanics, and of American materials, originated in the necessity of building an American navy.

"There should be no more delay in the work of reinstating American commerce, not only by the inspiration supplied by such events as we have this day witnessed, but by such legislation as will set free American mechanical industry and excite American enterprise. Commerce is the life-blood of a nation, and no country that loses or impoverishes it can reach and maintain a commanding position among the nations of the earth.

wiping out of the Jeffersonian part, and the convention of Jeffersonians and Populites resolved themselves into the "National People's party."

It was after 9 o'clock when Chairman W. H. Staggs, of the Committee on Resolutions, was given the stage and began the reading of quite a voluminous report, which began by congratulating the people of Alabama on the recent Republican victories in other States, and then took up the subject of the alleged ballot-box stuffing.

The report stated that the committee had at hand ample proof of all their allegations of fraud, and that Koib and his ticket were elected last August, and had been counted out.

REVOLUTIONARY SENTIMENTS.

Washington are Senators Gorman, Camden, Ransom, and Harris. The first three named were in conference for a long time this afternoon, Mr. Ransom going to the Senate chamber as soon as he reached the city. Mr. Gorman, when asked about the conference, said that it was an impromptu gathering, it being the first time they had met since their departure from town to engage in the work of the campaign. He denied that there was any political significance in the conference.

None of these senators would discuss the subject of the organization of the next Senate.

Senate.

Senator Voorhees came in on the afternoon train, and will leave in a few days for the Virginia*Hot Springs, where he will remain until the first week in December. Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, will reach Washington next Thursday, and Mr. Blackburn is expected the first of next week. Senator Peffer has returned from Kansas, but is non-communicative as to the policy of the Populists in the matter of organization.

THE MONGOOSE AT ASTIVILLE.

ville, N. C., says it will be well for our government to profit by Jamaica's experience and prohibit the importation of the mongoose into the United States.

When the mongoose was introduced into Jamaica to destroy rats which infested the sugar and coffee plantations, they did the work so well and increased so rapidly that heir natural food-supply was soon exhausted, and they began to prey upon all small living creatures. All ground-birds were wiped out. All snakes and toads, and land-crabs, young calves, young pigs, puppies, game, turtles, fell victims to the mongoose, which became a much worse pest than the English sparrow in America or the rabbit in Australia.

Supreme Court Decisions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 12.—
The United State Supreme Court to-day handed down a number of minor decisions, none of which were of special importance. Among them was one affirming the decision of the Circuit Court of Arkansas in the case of H. G. Allis, formerly president of the First National Bank of Little Rock, Ark., convicted in a State Court of altering the books of the bank, and appealed to the United States Circuit Court and to the United States Supreme Court. Justice Brewer read the opinion, which was very brief, and affirmed the conviction of Allis.

Ready for Appointment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 12—
Theodore Wright Richards, of the District of Columbia, has passed an examination and qualified for duty in the medical corps of the navy, and will be appointed by the President an assistant surgeon.

GENERAL MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION.

tions to Usarp Power"-Strike Co

CHICAGO, November 12.-The United States Government report on the great The report, which is signed by the Federal Labor Commissioner, Carroll D. Wright, and his fellow-investigators, John D. Kernan, of New York, and Nicholas E. Worthington, of Illinois, is addressed to President Cleveland, and abounds in passages which will attract wide attention, particularly a portion referring to the now famous "General Managers' Association," the organization of high railway officials that encompassed the memorable defeat of the American Railway

The report says: "The committee questions whether any legal authority, statutory or otherwise, can be found to justify some of the features of the association which have come to light in this investi-gation. If we recard its practical work-ings rather than its professions, as ex-pressed in its constitution, the General Managers' Association has no more stand-ing in law than the old trunk-line pool. If cannat incorporate, because railroad charmanagers association has no more subming in law than the old trunk-line pool. It cannot incorporate, because rallroad charters do not authorize roads to form corporations or associations to fix rates for services and wages, to force their acceptance, nor to battle with strikers. It is a usurpation of power not granted. If such an association is necessary from a business or economic standpoint the right to form and maintain it must come from the State that granted its charter. In theory corporations are limited to the powers granted either directly or by clear inference. We do not think the power has been granted in either way in this case. "The association is an illustration of the persistent and shrewdly-devised plan of "The association is an illustration of the persistent and shrewdly-devised plan of corporations to overreach their limitations and to usurp indirectly powers and rights not contemplated in their charters and not obtainable from the people or their legislatures. An extension of this association as above suggested and the proposed legalization of 'pooling' would result in an aggregation of power and capital dangerous to the people and their liberties, as well as to employees and their rights. The question would then certainrights. The question would then certain-ly arise as to which should centrol, the government or the railroads, and the end would inevitably be government ownership.

"Unless ready for that result and all "Unless ready for that result and all that it implies, the government must restrain corporations within the law, and prevent them from forming unlawful and dangerous commissions. At least, so long as railreads are thus permitted to combine to fix wages and for their just protection, it would be rank injustice to deny the right of all labor upon railreads to unite for similar nursoes.

PITTSBURG, PENN., November 12.→ Another echo of the famous Homestead Carnegie Steel Company. The plaintiff, a non-union workman, formerly of Chat-tanooga, Tenn., alleges that he was poleoned while working for the defend-ants. He ate in the famous No. 5 reswork half-time until April last, when he was discharged. He claims to have been reduced from a man weighing 140 pounds to one weighing 76 pounds.

ELKHART, IND., November 12.—The Eikhart Knitting-Mills, employing over one hundred hands, was completely demolished by burrowing muskrats undermining the building. The extensive machinery and thousands of pairs of hosiery were hurled into the St. Joseph river by the caving in of the earth, Only a portion of the building remains. The loss is estimated at $10,000.
